TESLA'S REMARKABLE CLAIMS.

Scientists who have considered the claims of Nikola Tesla, the Hungarian electrical wizard, to transmit electrical power without the use of wires, and ability to destroy the most powerful fleets by electrical devices, are divided in their opinions as to his ability to do even half what he proposes. And yet, says the Denver News, millions of people now living scoffed at the first reports of the successful use of the telephone, and even after short distance telephones were in everyday use, millions more were loth to believe that the human voice could be carried hundreds of miles. Millions more were inclined to make sport of the scientists who first sought to displace horse cars with electric cars, and many, even today, will not believe that in a few years electricity will displace steam on the railroad systems of the world.

Electricity is still, despite the intense labors of scientists, the most mysterious agency in the world. Its use is in its infancy. The wonders performed with it since Morse sent the first telegraph message will seem like mere child's play in the next century. It would be well not to scoff at Tesla's latest claims too publicly, but to await the outcome of the experiments which he promises soon to perform.

In the meantime, it would not be well for Congress to resume its past cheese-eating policy in regard to the defenses of the nation. Big battleships may soon be rendered of costly worthlessness by Mr. Tesla. Or, again, they may not. Until it shall be positively demonstrated that they can be destroyed without ability to destroy, it would be well for Congress to continue to provide a few millions each year for them.

THE SITUATION IN WEST VIRGINIA.

In West Virginia there appears to be pressing need of a couple of patent, rapid action bouncing machines. The Republicans will probably have control of the State Senate and the Democrats of the House. Both parties announce their intention of filing contests, there is very little majority either way on joint ballot, a United States Senator is to be elected, and the question threatens to resolve itself into the simple proposition of which side can muster the larger number of its opponents. As the membership of the House is larger than that of the Senate, the Democrats seem to have the best of the position. Of course, the procedure is not quite in harmony with the golden rule or the spirit of the Constitution, but when they start in a political fight in West Virginia they usually carry it through to a finish, and moralize over it afterwards, when there is more leisure.

DEMOCRATIC LEADERSHIP IN THE HOUSE.

There is sure to be a very spirited contest for the leadership of the minority in the new Congress. James D. Richardson of Tennessee is an avowed rival of the present Democratic leader of the House, Bailey of Texas. In many quarters the name of Judge Jno. C. Bell of Colorado has been mentioned as a compromise candidate. He is very popular in the House, and although he is a man of positive views on public questions, is regarded as a conservative man who will make a very safe and reliable leader. The present House being much closer than the last one, and a Presidential election being just ahead, the leadership of the House minority is a place of grave responsibility and calls for qualities of genuine statesmanship.

TELEGRAPHIC NOTES.

The Spanish Peace Commissioners wired Madrid Monday night the substance of the United States Memorandum. At 1 o'clock yesterday morning a Spanish Commissioner affirmed that his colleagues did not know what to do regarding the American offer. There is a difference of opinion among uncalled people near the Commissioners, but the practice is made that Spain will decline the American offer of money, that she will refuse to cede the Philippines and will say to the United States:

"You may take the archipelago because you have the power to do so. As you advance we will retire, protest against greedy aggression. We will faithfully carry out our part of the pledges and leave Cuba and Porto Rico in your hands. You come here to engage in a discussion under the terms of the protocol but you evidently meant when drawing up that document, to provide a conference in which, though we differ from you, you proposed to announce at the proper time what you will do whether we agree to it or object. Such an attitude robes the Conference of a negotiable character and sets up the United States as a dominant power, whose first purpose is to listen but whose ultimate determination is to do its own will."

The War Department has received a dispatch from General Brooke about the reported disorders in the Island of Porto Rico. The reports were of such a character as to give the Department some concern. As it was alleged that United States troops were making serious trouble for the inhabitants of the island General Brooke was cabled and his reply is as follows: Advice received daily from San Sebastian and other troublesome regions. Disorders were reported from the part of the island immediately after it came into our possession, but I have it thoroughly patrolled and am still patrolling it. Everything has been quiet for three or four weeks. Several bandits have been killed or wounded by patrols. Reports are very much exaggerated. Every point has been heard from today, and quiet and good order prevail.

THE BACHELOR SURPLUS.

A Gloomy Outlook for Advocates of Matrimony.

There seems to be good reason for the lamentations uttered by an Eastern publication because of the disclosure made in reports of the Department of Interior, that there were more unmarried men than unmarried women in the country. The trouble is evidently irremediable, for while there are 5,427,767 bachelors in the United States there are only 3,224,494 unmarried ladies. It is only gallant to suppose that most of the men have remained single because of cold, unfeeling rejection of their advances in times past, but even supposing that all the 3,224,494 maidens shun relent to wed there still must remain a surplus of 2,209,273 cases of bachelorhood absolutely incapable of reform by means of any native American agencies.

What makes the problem darker is that the condition is more serious in the regions otherwise most promising. In the great northern central group of States, from Ohio and Michigan west to the Dakotas and Kansas, there are 947,305 bachelors; that is to say 947,305 men who, were all the maids and spinsters in those States to be given in marriage, still must be left wifless. In Pennsylvania, New York, and New England the excess is only 422,622, and in the South it sinks even lower, while in Illinois, for instance, the proportion of bachelors to maids is more than three to one, or, to be explicit, 958,036 to 107,904.

The figures present a gloomy outlook for advocates of matrimony, but before sociologists commence hunting for a remedy let them take notice that these figures show conclusively that the spinsters, not the bachelors, are to be blamed for this condition. The excess of bachelors does not imply that men are any more reluctant to marry, but rather that in a spirit of generous rivalry each holds back, fearing to reduce the already limited supply of spinsters. In the first place there are not enough ladies to go round and in the second place the ladies refuse to help matters by accepting as many of the bachelors as they can. After this there should be no more talk of blaming and taxing the lonely bachelor.—Cincinnati Record.

After the Battle.

"Tis done! Some have won, And some are wondering how To explain it now. Some who told us, yesterday, That they Were dead sure winners say They didn't expect to get there, anyway. Some are glad. And some are mad. Some are sick and some are sore. And sure that the government will go To the dogs, since they are lying low, And part of it no more. Yet the sun will rise To light the skies, Day after day, And the winds will blow And the waters flow Just as if they Who failed had won, And things will run On much the same as they did before. But here is a tear For the children of the fool who bet his all Upon the man Who "also ran." —Cleveland Plaindealer.

A True Old Lady.

Out in Indiana a good many years ago a certain old lady, summoned as a witness, came into court wearing a large poke bonnet, such as was then much affected by rural folks. Her answers to the questions put to her being rather indistinct, the court requested her to speak louder, though without much success.

"The court cannot hear a word you say, my good woman," said the judge. "Please to take off that huge bonnet of yours."

"Sir," she said composedly and distinctly enough this time, "the court has a perfect right to bid a gentleman take off his hat, but it has no right to make a lady remove her bonnet."

"Madam," replied the judge, "you are so well acquainted with the law that I think you had better come up and take a seat with us on the bench."

"I thank your honor kindly," she responded, dropping a low courtesy to the court, "but there are old women enough there already."—Law Notes.

Mark Twain and His Pyjamas.

Mark Twain has an intense dislike for clothes, and if it were possible would remain in his pyjamas day in and day out. And whenever he can do so he eats breakfast in them, receives his friends and works in them. His favorite mode of writing is to lie flat on the floor on his stomach in his pyjamas, with a pipe in his mouth. When on lecture tours, he never gets out of his sleeping clothes until it is time to go to hall or opera house. When the fit strikes him, he likes to exercise, and then with his customary shuffle will shuffle along for miles and exhaust his most athletic companion. But he feels far more at home in his pyjamas than in a street suit or evening clothes, and in them he remains as great a part of the day as Mrs. Clemens will allow him.—Ladies' Home Journal.

CORBETT-SHARKEY.

McVey, Corbett's second, jumps into the ring in the ninth round, and the referee stops the bout and gives Sharkey the decision.The Lenox Athletic Club-rooms at New York were crowded to overflowing last night in anticipation of the great Corbett-Sharkey mill, which has been advertised for some weeks. The out-of-town contingent predominated in the audience. Betting was comparatively light, the Sharkey men holding out for better odds. Souvenirs were distributed, giving the events of the evening as well as future events.The preliminary fights were between Jack Sullivan and Charley Schultz for ten rounds, and ten rounds between Kid Harris of Chicago and Charley Roden of Jersey City.By 8:30 the Club House was crowded to its utmost and betting was livelier.
The odds were in Corbett's favor at $100 to $80.Schultz and Sullivan started the ball in lively shape, the latter intending to make a quick job of it. Seven rounds were fought both men being entirely fagged out, and the referee gave the decision to Schultz.Kid McCoy was recognized in the building wearing a false mustache and eye glasses and was escorted outside although protesting.Kid Harris and Chas. Roden appeared in the ring and the second event was on. The fighting was spirited, Harris having the best of it throughout. In the ninth round Harris broke Roden's jaw with a right hook and the referee stopped the contest and gave the decision to Harris.The immense crowd shows great anxiety for the appearance of Corbett and Sharkey. At 10:26 Tom O'Rourke, Sharkey's second, stepped into the ring followed by his principal. The announcer asked that smoking be discontinued during the bout.Chief Deverey in full uniform took up a position at the corner of the ring.
The terms of the contest were 20 rounds. Sharkey gave his weight at 178 pounds, Corbett at 188. Corbett appears amidst great cheering. Honest John Kelley, the referee, ascends to the platform and shakes hands with both men. Corbett provides his own gloves, which Sharkey inspects and weight championship of the world.Corbett arose as if to have that changed, but the announcer waved him aside. A discussion followed as to rules to be while Tom O'Rourke represented Sharkey. Considine, Corbett's second, principals retired to their corners

JUDGE MACK INDIGNANT.

He Calls Upon the District Attorney to Investigate.After the regular court business yesterday morning, Judge Mack called the attention of the District Attorney to the fact that a certain newspaper in Carson had indirectly charged or bad thrown out the impression that he had indulged in certain irregularities in the drawing of the Grand Jury. This, in so far as he was concerned, was an absolute falsehood and as it also underservedly gave the impression that other officials were guilty, he felt it his duty to call upon the District Attorney to investigate this proposition and if any foundation for such an allegation could be discovered that he desired him to present the facts before the Grand Jury for consideration.The Judge was indignant at the reflections cast upon the bench and upon the officers of the county and on the street said that he did not propose to allow the proprietors of that "ten-cent sheet think they could go on and libel and blackmail every respectable person in town." —Carson Appeal Another great dry-grocery has been made, and that too, by a lady in this country. "Disease fastened its clutch upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly, and could not sleep. She finally discovered a way to recovery, by purchasing of us a bottled of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and was so much relieved on taking first dose, that she slept all night; and two bottles, has absolutely cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz. Thus writes H. C. Hamnick &

Fellow Jaundies Cured.

Suffering humanity should be supplied with every means possible for its relief. It is with pleasure we publish the following: This is to certify that I was a terrible sufferer from Yellow Jaundice for over six months, and was treated by some of the best physicians in our city and all to no avail. Dr.
Bell our druggist, recommended Electric Bitters; and after taking two bottles, I was entirely cured. I now take great pleasure in recommending them to any Person suffering from this terrible malady. I am gratefully yours
